Morning

2025 年 2 月 7 日

In the heart of the city lies a small, tranquil park that serves as an oasis for weary souls.

The park is a tapestry of green, with lush grass, towering trees, and vibrant flowers that bloom in every season.

Benches are scattered along winding paths, inviting visitors to sit and soak in the serenity.

Children's laughter fills the air as they chase each other around the playground, their joy a stark contrast to the hustle and bustle of the city just beyond the park's borders.

In the evenings, the park transforms into a haven for joggers and dog walkers, the soft glow of streetlights casting a warm, inviting light.

It is a place where time seems to slow down, allowing people to reconnect with nature and themselves.
